

“Delights that satisfy all Appetites” in 17th- Century British Lyric Poetry

A close reading of “Love” by Thomas Traherne, a metaphysical poet sometimes called proto- Wordsworthian for his vision of an innocent childhood. At the same time, this devotional poem bears sexually transgressive implications. Dr. Graham will compare “Love” with Donne’s “Batter my heart” and Shakespeare’s Sonnet 20.

Join us!

When: October 2, 2018

12:30pm-1:50pm

Where: Science Complex P101

Sponsored by:

The Department of
English’s Close Reading Series

A lite lunch will be served

Space is limited -first come first serve

english.tcnj.edu/events/fall-2018-events/

